

A world abandoned

We as a species have diverged;
Separated by religion;
Government turned
Man against man;
Brought together by greed-
The only thing we have in common,
The world from which we feed.

On a finite planet we live as if it's not –
We live for tomorrow, but plan for today
We have everything backwards
And nothing will stop the world from decay

When Mother Nature takes back her right,
The world will silence without fight.
When the last ocean is poisoned, the last tree chopped down –
Humanity will fade away into the night.

Not a breath of oxygen available,
Because the green is now gone
Not a cup of water clean,
We used it because our showers were too long

A species disbanded
A world abandoned
