

Species of Risk Levels...

There are seven different designations that COSEWIC uses to determine the level of risk for a species. Under the SARA, COSEWIC uses seven categories to indicate the level of danger an at-risk species currently faces:

Extinct - a species that no longer exists anywhere on Earth.

Extirpated - a species that no longer exists in the wild in Canada, but is still living in other areas of the world.

Endangered - a species that is facing imminent extirpation or extinction.

Threatened - a species that is likely to become endangered if nothing is done to reverse the factors leading to its extirpation or extinction.

Special Concern - a species that may become threatened or endangered because of a combination of biological characteristics and identified threats.

Data Deficient - a category that applies when there is not enough available information to determine if the species is at risk or not.

Not at Risk - a species that is not at risk of extinction.

Species at Risk in Canada

- Since the arrival of the first European settlers, more than 30 wildlife species have become extinct in Canada.
- At present, over 500 plant and animal species are considered at risk in Canada.
- Everywhere in Canada, people are engaged in recovery activities that benefit more than 200 species.
- All Canadians can take simple actions every day to help species at risk.

B.C. humpbacks lose 'threatened' status, opening door for Northern Gateway

CTV National News: Politics vs. preservation

Omar Sachedina explains why downgrading the extinction threat of humpback whales is about politics and preservation.

Power Play: Eliminating red tape for pipeline

Mark Matton, Lake Ontario Waterkeeper president, says downgrading the status of humpback whales removes barriers for the Gateway pipeline.

CTV News Channel: Humpbacks not threatened

Keith Stewart of Greenpeace says political considerations are the main reason for the whales' removal from the threatened species list.
